Things to Do Before Thanksgiving

Break By Mia Yost-Kelly

We are about halfway through the semester as of now! As we count down the days to Thanksgiving break, there are a few things to consider in the coming weeks:

- How are you doing in your classes?
  - You should map out important dates (tests, finals, other hard deadlines, etc.), and you should take stock of grades– the last day to use a W (withdrawal) for a class is December 6th.
- Do you need to adjust your routine?
  - As you are figuring out college life, your lifestyle will inevitably change, and you can implement self-care routines, study periods, or exercise times to help keep yourself on track and healthy.
- Have you either signed up for or completed all your Galipatia event credits?
  - Chances are that you have not, and you should try to sign up for them sooner rather than later because there aren't any events after Thanksgiving break.

Quotes of the Week by Gabriel Rosado

"I was taught that the way of progress was neither swift nor easy." - Marie Curie

"Courage isn't having the strength to go on - it is going on when you don't have strength." - Napoleon Bonaparte

"Science, for me, gives a partial explanation for life. In so far as it goes, it is based on fact, experience, and experiment." - Rosalind Franklin

"In order to succeed greatly, you have to be prepared to fail greatly. If you can't do both of them, you've got a problem." - Mike Tyson

"As far as I can tell, it's just about letting the universe know what you want and then working toward it while letting go of how it comes to pass." - Jim Carrey

"Even when your life seems most monotonous, what you do is always of real value and importance to your fellow men." - Queen Elizabeth II

"Be smart if not kind and kind if not smart. Just don't be a stupid bitch." - Anonymous

Horror Movies Recommendations by Jasmine Pegues

With spooky season in full swing, here are a few great horror(-ish) movies I personally recommend! Make sure to check for various content warnings online before diving into any of these; doesthedogdie.com is a great source.

The Silence of the Lambs (1991)

One of my favorite movies of all time, The Silence of the Lambs showcases FBI training student Clarice Starling and her interviews with infamous psychiatrist and psychopath Dr. Hannibal Lecter, who is currently serving life in maximum-security prison for various murders and acts of cannibalism. The movie follows Starling's work as she attempts to extract valuable information Dr. Lecter may have about an ongoing case.

The Blair Witch Project (1999)

This one's definitely a cult classic. Its plot revolves around three student filmmakers who disappear in the remote woods near Burkittsville, MD while attempting to film a documentary about the mythical Blair Witch. What's fascinating about the movie's style is that it's presented as a series of found footage clips pieced together, so you really experience the horror firsthand.

Hereditary (2018)

As the title suggests, Hereditary is all about family, specifically the Graham family. It follows the death of their grandmother Ellen and, as the family mourns, they begin to unravel a cryptic, horrifying web of secrets about their lineage. Again, another one of my absolute favorites and an incredible performance from Toni Colette (this is that movie with the "I am your mother!" scene).

Get Out (2017)

Get Out is one of those movies that really keeps you guessing what'll happen next. It stars Daniel Kaluuya as Chris, who drives upstate with his girlfriend to visit her family for the weekend. The family seems to at first simply be a little strange and over-accommodating to Chris, however, a series of disturbing discoveries gradually lead to a horrifying truth about them.

An extra few that I ran out of space to include are Rosemary's Baby, Skinamarink, Bones and All, and Jennifer's Body— as well as the TV shows Yellowjackets and Hannibal!
