SO, YOU WENT TO EXPO. NOW WHAT?

Author: Kiara Klevar

Even though Engineering Expo is finished, you should still be keeping an eye out for any internships or co-ops that might interest you. In addition, you should apply for other opportunities as a backup in case you do not get an internship at the company you talked to at Engineering Expo. There are many websites that post internships and job opportunities for Engineering students including but not limited to Handshake, LinkedIn, and many others.

Another thing you can do is sign up for information sessions. Many Virginia Tech organizations connect with companies to host events that help students learn more about the company, ways they can improve their resumes, and interview tips.

A couple of the organizations that help companies host information sessions are the Society of Women Engineers, IEEE, ECEconnect, Student Engineers' Council, National Society of Black Engineers, Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers, and numerous others.

You can find information about the different organizations on Gobler connect or search them up on Google. These organizations can be a very useful tool for getting in touch with companies and finding job opportunities.

Another thing you can do is expand your network. Having a large network can help with getting internships, making connections with companies, and finding jobs when you graduate. Some ways you can expand your network is by talking to family, friends, and even professors about interests, different career areas, and other activities you have done that you might want a job in. Professors have been in your position before. They have been students looking for internships. They could have advice on how you can advertise yourself to employers.

Also remember, if you did not get an interview or an internship at Engineering Expo, IT'S OKAY!! There will be more opportunities for you to connect with recruiters and companies before summer starts. Don't give up now. Put yourself out there!!

WEEKLY HOROSCOPES

Author: Aiswarya Gopinadam

Capricorn - You are at odds with yourself as you struggle to reconcile your wants and your needs. Your practicality is important, but do not disregard your emotional side. It's okay to ask for help, and you need to focus on whatever will lighten your load.

Aquarius - You are in the midst of a big change, whether you realize it or not. Try to reconnect with your inner child during this change by finding your joy in unconventional places!

Pisces - You may be uncertain about your path in life, and that may cause you a lot of anxiety. Be proud of the work you're putting in, and trust that everything will turn out okay!

Aries - You're used to succeeding if you work hard enough, but that's made you believe there is only one way to reach your goals. Change can be a good thing, so switch things up this week and see where your new path takes you!

Taurus - Motivation may not always come easily, but be sure of yourself this week! Good things are coming your way, so practice gratitude and don't let trivial concerns bring you down!

Gemini - You might find yourself questioning your beliefs this week, which can be scary and uncomfortable. Reach out to your chosen family and trust in your support system and in yourself.

Cancer - The tradeoff for your professional life may be your personal life. Regret is not a path forward, so focus on healing and make space for the people who care about you.

Leo - You are your own worst critic, whether you realize it or not. Try to find your joy through your relationships rather than through numerical success, and open up to the people in your life!

Virgo - You may love yourself, but you're struggling to like yourself. Remember that your worth comes from you, not from your usefulness to others. Trust yourself, and know that you're loved for who you are rather than what you do.

Libra - You have a complicated past, and you worry about it affecting your future. Forgive yourself for your mistakes, but remember to learn and grow from your failures.

Scorpio - Your words will speak louder than your actions this week. You might mean well, but it's easy to be misconstrued. Communicate clearly with your peers, and don't be afraid to let your caring side shine through!

Sagittarius - Your generosity and kindness may be taken advantage of this week. Learn to set boundaries with your loved ones and prioritize your well being this week!

PLACES TO STUDY

Author: Jiyeon Park

As you are approaching the exams for your classes, you might want to look for a place to study.

Unfortunately, there is only one lounge on the second floor this semester. However, there are many places to study on campus.

Newman Library:

You can either reserve a group study room through booking.lib.vt.edu or use an open study area. Located on the 2nd and 4th floors of Newman library, there are spaces for collaborative work including whiteboards.

Quiet spaces and Torg Bridge:

If you are a person who needs a quiet place to study, Torg bridge, the 3rd, and the 5th floor of the Newman library offer quiet study space for you. But keep in mind to be considerate of those around you while in these spaces.

Torgersen Hall:

Torgersen Hall is next to the Newman library. On the first floor of Torgersen Hall, there is an open space to study.

Hancock Hall:

Hancock Hall has an open study area on the first floor and the second floor near the door. On the first floor, there are three desks with comfortable sofas and desks with partitions.

New Classroom Building:

On each floor, there are some small open study lounges to study with your friends. Although it is a little far away from Hoge Hall, you can always go to study after your classes when you are nearby.

D2:

If you want to study all day WITH FOOD, D2 is a place for you. On Sunday you can stay all day just paying for your breakfast, lunch, and dinner ONCE! But be careful on weekdays because there is a break time for the employees between lunch and dinner.
