FUN FALL SEMESTER CLASSES!

Author: Aaiswarya Gopinadam

Add/Drop opens up on April 21st and closes on May 26th. If you have some extra credit space to fill or simply want to take a pathway or get an easy A, consider taking some of the fun classes offered next semester!

Indoor Plants (HORT 2144)

Do you love plants and/or easy classes? Then check out Indoor Plants! It is one of the intro horticulture classes which teaches you a ton about identifying and propagating different types of flora! One of the best things about this class is how many free plants you can get out of it! Sign up quickly, because this class fills up every semester!

Introduction to Acting (TA 2024)

Are you a theater kid-turned-Engineer? Or did you just (rightfully) love high school musical as a kid? Either way, Intro to Acting could be the perfect elective for you! It's meant to be an easy and fun intro class, and it should be open to non-majors for next semester!

Basketball (HNFE 1214)

The basketball class is only one credit and a great way to get some exercise in every week! HNFE 1214 also has options such as intro golf and intro to swimming which could be fun options as well. Help defeat engineering stereotypes by signing up for an athletic class for the fall!

Theater Production Lab (TA 3014)

Are you interested in processes such as construction, production, and theater technology? Then check out the Theater Production Lab! This is a great option if you love theater but are more interested in working behind the scenes rather than up on stage! Further, this class teaches you a lot of skills in terms of building and managing that can be useful for your engineering major and your life in general!

Greek and Roman Myth (RLCL 2444)

Did either Percy Jackson or The Song of Achilles make you cry? If so, sign up for the Greek and Roman Mythology class next semester! The assignments are not typically difficult, and classes are meant to go in-depth with the different legends and histories behind ancient mythology. This class promises to be really fun and a great way to make non-engineering friends with similar interests!

There are a lot of fun classes at Virginia Tech, and there's a place for everyone!

KING HENRY VIII'S WIVES

Author: Sara Grammar

One of the most well-known figures in history is King Henry VIII of England. Strangely enough, he is known primarily for his six marriages and his two daughters, who are even bigger figures in English history. So, who were these women that he married?

Catherine of Aragon was Henry's first wife. She was the daughter of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella of Spain and the widow of Henry's older brother, Arthur. Henry married her shortly after he took the throne. She was a strong Catholic queen who played an important role in political affairs while married to Henry and she gave birth to Mary I of England, or Bloody Mary.

Anne Boleyn was Henry's second wife and in order to marry her, Henry broke away from the Catholic Church to establish the Church of England and annul his marriage to Catherine of Aragon. She gave birth to Queen Elizabeth I of England who would eventually become one of the most important English queens in history.

Jane Seymour was his third wife. In order to marry her, Henry had to find a way out of his marriage to Anne Boleyn and ended up beheading her. She was a peacemaker at court and died while giving birth to Edward VI.

Anne of Cleves was his fourth wife. They were married and divorced during the same year and lived the rest of her life with a generous allowance and property for her compliance in the divorce and was generally known to be quite generous to her servants.

Katherine Howard was his fifth wife and was the youngest of his wives; she could have been as young as 15 when they were married. Her life was quite tragic, she was abused for nearly all of her life and was ultimately beheaded.

Catherine Parr was Henry's sixth wife and ultimately survived him. She published multiple books and supported female artists, having one paint her portrait, during her life.
